Historically, September has been viewed as the month of beginnings and the month of endings. For some people, it is the beginning of the harvest season, which means the end of the growing season; the beginning of football and the end of baseball; the beginning of school and the end of summer. Magellan completed his circumnavigation of the world on September 6, 1527, and Sir Francis Drake ended a similar voyage on September 26, 1580. At least one author believes that God began the days of creation on September 22nd and finished them on September 28th.

It is also during this time, according to the Jewish calendar, that a series of celebrations occur. One of these celebrations, called “The Days of Awe,” marks ten days between the Feast of Trumpets and the Day of Atonement. During this time, people reflect, repent, and restore broken relationships before appearing before Almighty God on the Day of Atonement. Through the blood of Christ, atonement has been made, and because of the blood we are free to reflect, repent, and restore without hindrance or hesitation. As your calendar, and perhaps your schedule, begins to change, remember that we serve a God who doesn’t – “He is the same, yesterday, today and forever” and He invites you to draw near.
